Thy Kingdom Come Celebration will welcome Christians of all denominations and The Archbishop of Canterbury!

Join the global wave of prayer
10th - 20th May 2018

pray as an individual, pray as a family, pray as a church

10-20th May 2018 Praying for the ten days from Ascension Day to Pentecost is traditional, recalling the actions of the disciples following Jesus’ ascension. Two prayers are the focus of attention this year: “Thy Kingdom Come,” and “Come Holy Spirit,” says Archbishop Justin in the TKC video for 2018, at www.thykingdomcome.global.

To get the most out of Thy Kingdom Come:
1) Commit to pray your way - as an individual, a family or a church. For ideas on how to pray please visit - https://www.thykingdomcome.global/prayerresources. Sign up to Pledge2Pray at www.thykingdomcome.global
2) Hold or attend prayer events, such as 24-7 prayer, prayer breakfasts, prayer stations and prayer walks
3) Through prayer, be open to finding new confidence to be a witness for Jesus Christ in every bit of life - with family, work colleagues, networks, friends and neighbours.
4) Come to the 19th May Celebration: It begins at 6.30 p.m. put please leave plenty of time to find parking. Before the celebration (from 4 p.m.) there will be a variety of prayer spaces and fun activities on offer throughout the Cathedral.

Saturday 19th May 2018 was always going to be a memorable day, especially for royal-watching-football-fans-who-are-praying-for-new-disciples, with the wedding of Prince Harry to Meghan Markle, the FA cup final and Thy Kingdom Come drawing to a close for 2018.

Now it’s also going to include Thy Kingdom Come’s Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire celebration and the Archbishop of Canterbury is coming to join Christians of all denominations.

St Albans Cathedral will host the event, having seen more than 1300 people gather to celebrate and pray for people to come to know Jesus Christ last June.

Thy Kingdom come, which started in 2016, has progressed from being a call to the Church of England to pray for people to come to know Jesus Christ to become a call to prayer encompassing all denominations and many nations.

Archbishop Justin, who last visited St Albans Diocese in June 2015, shared his enthusiasm for this still-growing movement of prayer when he recently said: “I cannot remember in my life anything that I’ve been involved in where I have sensed so clearly the work of the Spirit.”
Bishop’s Letter

Commemorating the centenary of the end of the First World War

“I would suggest that nothing less that pledging ourselves to peace making and preventing further conflict will do if we are really serious about commemorating the centenary.”

This autumn will be dominated by television programmes, newspaper articles and exhibitions marking the 100th anniversary of the end of the First World War. Estimates vary, but it is thought that as many as 18 million soldiers and civilians were killed worldwide. Here in Britain around 1 million people were killed and 1.67 million injured.

Behind these horrendous statistics lie the tragic stories of individual soldiers who never returned to these shores and whose bodies lie in foreign soil.

If you visit the St Symphorien military cemetery, near Mons in Belgium, you will find two adjacent tombstones marking the graves of the first and the last soldiers to be killed in the First World War.

Seventeen year old Private John Parr was a local man, born in Barnet and brought up in North Finchley. After leaving school he worked as a golf caddy but then decided to enlist in the Middlesex Regiment despite the fact that he was only 14 years old. He became a reconnaissance cyclist and whilst on a patrol was killed seventeen days after the start of the war. It was thought he was shot by a German cavalry patrol, although the 17 year old’s body was never identified.

Private George Ellison, a married Yorkshire miner, who fought with the Royal Irish Lancers, had survived the battles of Mons, Ypres, Armentieres, Loos, Bassée, Lens and Cambrai. It is tragic that as the war drew to a close he was killed just 90 minutes before the armistice whilst on patrol near Mons.

These stories could be replicated thousands of times. Hardly a community or a family in Britain were unaffected by death and suffering. As we approach the centenary of the armistice, the pressing question facing us is how we should commemorate the end of the war.

Karen Bradley, the Culture Minister in the government has suggested that the centenary should be marked by the ringing of church bells, just as they rang out at the armistice. Well, as a bell ringer, I am always keen to hear bells being rung. Yet we surely, as well as marking the moment in this and other transient ways, we need a response which is more ambitious and more fitting to honour the memory of those who died and suffered.

I would suggest that nothing less that pledging ourselves to peace making and preventing further conflict will do if we are really serious about commemorating the centenary.

It is easy to presume that peace is simply the absence of conflict. Yet in the beatitudes Jesus spoke about ‘peace makers’, suggesting that it is not a passive state but an activity which requires our attention and our energy.

Peace making starts with us. We need to make peace in our own hearts where it is all too easy to harbour resentment and jealousy. It was significant that following the Brexit vote, there was a surge in hate crimes across our nation, some of it rooted in xenophobia. If such feelings are not challenged and channelled, they can become the soil in which the seeds of conflict can flourish.

Dr Alan Smith,
Bishop of St Albans
We can also make peace by working for a world in which justice and equality prevail. Many of the trouble spots of the world are places where ancient grievances have lain dormant for decades like unexploded bombs (think of Bosnia or Rwanda), only to be detonated when a spark sets off a chain reaction of tit-for-tat revenge.

Perhaps the most important area that we need to address if we are to be peace makers is nuclear weapons. Last July 122 nations belonging to the United Nations voted for the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons, a legally binding international agreement to prohibit nuclear weapons. The support of at least fifty countries was required to bring it into effect. By January 2018 the treaty had been signed by fifty-six states.

The treaty prohibits the ‘development, testing, production, stockpiling, stationing, transfer, use and threat of use of nuclear weapons, as well as assistance and encouragement to the prohibited activities’. For those states which have nuclear weapons, the treaty specifies ‘a time-bound framework for negotiations leading to the verified and irreversible elimination of its nuclear weapons programme’. However, having a nuclear capability, the British government has been unwilling to sign the treaty. Meanwhile, many of us are concerned that in an unstable world where nuclear weapons are proliferating, we cannot afford to wait much longer. This was illustrated recently when, in response to Chairman Kim Jong-un, President Trump promised that if North Korea attacked the USA it ‘will be met with fire and fury like the world has never seen.’ The problem is that if, God forbid, either leader were to authorise the use of nuclear weapons it is unlikely that either of them, securely shielded in bunkers deep beneath the earth, would suffer personally. The collateral damage would be the millions of civilians who had nowhere to shelter. It is for this reason that I long for our county to engage with nuclear disarmament, even if it takes us several years.

So to return to the centenary of the Armistice, I hope that over the coming months we will all reflect on the part that we can play as peace makers in today's world – peace in our own lives, peace in our world and peace in the light of the threat of nuclear war.

The Diocese of St Albans in Bedfordshire, Hertfordshire, Luton & Barnet

See P4 (overleaf) for examples of two activities in the Diocese of St Albans that are contributing to peacemaking.
Grassroots: a positive effect on community cohesion for 25 years!

For twenty-five years, Grassroots has had the same mission: enhancing community cohesion and developing positive relationships locally, nationally and internationally. This simple explanation of its purpose belies the complexity of its situation in one of the most diverse communities in the Diocese of St Albans: Luton.

Nearly 400 guests from different faiths and cultural backgrounds attended Luton based Grassroots Programme's 25th Anniversary Celebrations. Opening the celebrations, leaders of four Christian denominations lit a candle. This was a symbolic act which is about lighting a candle rather than cursing the darkness which is the very ethos of Grassroots.

Looking back on its twenty-five years of activity, David Jonathan, Director, GRASSROOTS, pondered the increasing, not just religious but also, political fundamentalism, majoritarianism and general intolerance. In response, he renewed GRASSROOTS commitment to active participation, not commentating or spectating from the sidelines.

He recalled the comments he made at an earlier Luton Council of Faiths meeting: “We need to write the alternative narrative, not the next one. We need to find peaceful acts of defiance to counter the challenges that we face.”

Bishop Richard was recently received by the Dalai Lama in Dharamsala, with his friend from the Interfaith Network in the UK, Nitin Palan. Bishop Richard said: “The Dalai Lama spoke of Ahimsa (non-violence), harmony between faiths and the importance of compassion.”
No Pilgrimages for a year then five come along at once

This year, 2018, there will be no diocesan pilgrimages, but a programme of no fewer than five is planned for 2019 and 2020. Details are now available at www.stalbans.anglican.org/faith/pilgrimages-abroad/. Here's a flavour.

Holy Land
In May 2019 Archdeacon Paul & Canon Liz Hughes offer a ten day programme to the Holy Land, based in Jerusalem and Galilee.

Santiago de Compostela
In September 2019, Archdeacon Janet will be leading a progress along the Camino Trail to Santiago de Compostela. This tour offers some limited walking but also uses air-conditioned coaches!

The 2019 pilgrimages are open for booking now. See the website for forms.

Oberamergau - 3 pilgrimages
2020 is the year of the Oberammergau Passion Play and three tours are available, with bookings for each opening after Easter.
In June The Revd Dennis Stamps, Rector of Harpenden, will host a tour based in St Martin & Lofer; during the August school holidays Bishop Michael and his wife Lizzie will lead a programme staying in Imst, and in September The Revd Canon Abi Thompson and The Revd Dr Berkeley Zych, Sub Dean and Precentor of St Albans Cathedral, are leaders for a visit based at Strobl on the Wolfgangsee.
Please see the website for further details or email bookings@stalbanspilgrimages.org.uk if you have a general enquiry or wish to express an interest, without obligation.

Rejoice and be glad

Financially speaking, 2017 was not a bad year. Our Common Fund shows a deficit of just over £80,000 which is about ½% of our total expenditure ie virtually breaking even. However, although parish share receipts showed a useful increase over the previous year, the percentage received fell by about 1% which was disappointing. The shortfall in parish share receipts was fortunately offset by some positive variances on a number of expenditure headings: otherwise, the deficit would have been higher.

With fewer people coming to church, (although a good number of parishes are seeing growing membership), there is no doubt that many parishes do find that the financial situation is challenging. Please be assured that the Board of Finance is well aware of these pressures and every year the diocesan budget is reviewed in detail to identify areas where savings might be made so that the parish share request can be realistic. And our efforts will continue.

The plain fact is that collectively, the church members of today have to fund parochial ministry: that is where the parish share goes – to pay, house, pension and train our clergy and the clergy of the future. If we want to keep our parochial clergy then we have to find the money to pay for them.

I know that several parishes have joined the Parish Giving Scheme as part of their stewardship programmes and without exception, they have seen levels of giving rise with the prospect of increasing that income each year. You might want to look at this (there is a good deal of information on the diocesan web site about it) if you have not already done so. And if you think that it would be good to talk through any difficulties then do say – we are always very willing to meet and discuss problems.

Let us rejoice and be glad that we are able to proclaim our faith boldly, that we can sustain ministry in the parishes, schools and chaplaincies throughout the diocese and that with your help, we can continue to Live God’s Love with generosity and joy, imagination and courage in all that we do. Canon David Nye, DBF Chair

New Book: Who Is My Neighbour? The global and personal challenge

Who Is My Neighbour? The global and personal challenge is edited by Revs Richard Carter and Samuel Wells and contributors include Archbishop Justin Welby, Brendan Cox, Archbishop Lord Rowan Williams, Sarah Teather, Rabbi Shulamit Ambalu and Professor Stanley Hauerwas.

In the words of one of the editors, Sam Wells (Vicar of St Martin-in-the-Fields), whose mother came to the UK in 1938 as an asylum seeker, ‘this is a book about migration, about cross-cultural relationships, fear, discovery, surprises, politics and faith…’. He continues: ‘We are experiencing extraordinary movements of people… that reflect the political, climatic, social and economic changes affecting our continent and world… Migrants are the flotsam and jetsam of the ocean wave of global power… To turn our backs on migrants is to forget our identity, inhibit our renewal and deny our destiny.’

With much first hand experience of those who are displaced whether through homelessness, migration or a combination of those and other factors, the editors acknowledge that there is no simple answer to the ‘demanding issue’ of migration, but they criticise Western governments’ policy to ‘shoo people away as much as possible for as long as possible’ and the way that migrants have become ‘the visible embodiment of these terrifying risks that seem to have no limits or borders post 9/11’ and ‘the flashpoint of existing social tensions about taxation and welfare provision and shortage of housing’. Many of the UK and USA’s most dynamic leaders and shapers were from immigrant families – and Jesus himself was a migrant, with displacement being a key theme in the Bible. ‘Richly challenging and deeply engaging,’ is the Bishop of Stepney’s verdict on this book.

Almost 50% of all young people now secure a place at university. But graduates are currently leaving university with debts of over £50,000. What are the benefits of a university education, who benefits most and what are the benefits to society? The speaker will look at the facts in the context of current government policy and why, and how, the Church should be involved.
